ANDOVER STREET TO BE WIDENED

In a way, it was a victory for the Town Engineer of Wilmington, Arthur Harding.

The Board of Selectmen voted unanimously, Monday night to widen Andover Street, from the home of the Baldwin family to the end of the Daly farm, a distance of 1450 feet.

The street will become a 1970 'Chapter 90' project, and will be widened to sixty feet. Under the Chapter 90 projects the state pays one half of the cost, the county one quarter and the town one quarter.

The Town Engineer submitted a plan for the widening, made with funds provided by the Planning Board. The funds were transferred by that board when, for the second year in succession, Engineering funds were cut in the annual town meeting. The same selectmen has led the movement, in both instances.

The vote for the widening of the street was unanimous.

Town Manager Sterling Morris recommended to the selectmen that they accept the plan.

The present 60 foot terminus of Andover Street, near the Baldwin home, was part of the 1955 project of building Route 125.

Since he has become the Town Engineer, Mr. Harding has been seeking to have the road widened before industrial buildings were built too close to the street. One such building has been erected, but others have been built with an eye to the future widening.

Andover Street at the present time has a winding curve around a glacial hill, narrow and somewhat dangerous. The new route, as laid out by the Town Engineer will cut away part of that hill, and make the road straight, in addition to its having a 60 foot layout.

Morris and Harding told the Selectmen that the majority of the land owners have already agreed to 'swap' land, so that the street can be widened without 'land damages' having to be paid by the town.

Paul Whitney of Winchester, who owns about 120 acres, on both sides of the street, owns the larger part of the land which is to be 'swapped'. He has, Mr. Morris said, co-operated in every respect with the town in its plans.

Grange Hall Not Town Property

The vote of the annual Town Meeting, to purchase the property of the Grange Hall Corporation, on Wildwood Street, was not valid.

The Board of Selectmen were told, Monday night, by TM Sterling Morris that the State Department of Corporations has ruled that the vote was not legal, in that the purpose for which the land was being purchased was not stated in the article voted.

The town had voted to purchase the land, and in part payment exchange a lot of land on South Main Street, where a new Grange Hall was to be built.

No purpose was named by the town in its vote, because no one was certain whether the property should be used for school or library purposes. This was a question that was to be decided later.

Mrs. Drew, who asked the question which led to Morris' statement, and the other Selectmen, commented that next time they would name the purpose for which the land is to be purchased.

ORIGINALLY ERECTED IN 1910, the Grange Hall, on Wildwood Street awaits demolition. It was the victim of a fire in 1923, and again two years ago, and only the foundation (built by the father of the publisher of the Town Crier) remains in good condition.

CYO NOMINATIONS

Nominations for office in the CYO of St. Thomas Church are now open, but they close at 8 pm today.

Anyone wishing to make nominations is requested to call Mr and Mrs William Hanlon, 8 Sprucewood Road (658-4302) before 8 pm today

Vitale to Mrs Drew 'Shut Up!'

Felice Vitale of Woburn Street, often a candidate for the Board of Selectmen, and a perpetual spectator at the Board of Selectmen's meetings, is a man who offers his opinions on all subjects, at those meetings.

He does this generally with the permission of the chairman, but sometimes without such permission. He has been twice escorted from the Selectmen's meetings for interfering with the meetings.

Monday night, while Mrs Wavie Drew was speaking on a subject Vitale interrupted to give his opinion. Mrs Drew objected and said that Vitale should keep quiet.

Vitale retorted 'Shut Up!'. Not many persons heard him, but Mrs Drew evidently did, for at the end of the meeting she told the chairman that Mr Vitale was 'wasting too much of the Selectmen's time'.

Mr. Banda told Mrs Drew that he would do something about it.

Selectman George Boylen, who was seated within a few feet of Vitale, said nothing, but got up and walked out of the Selectmen's meeting room.

PHILIP BUZZELL, Retired Town Counsel of Wilmington, made one of his rare public appearances Tuesday night, at the Board of Appeals hearings in the Town Hall, when he argued a case for Cornelius Joyce, who is dividing the old Harnden farm on Harnden Street known as The Elms.

To the left of Mr Buzzell is Albert Symes of Stoneham, who is purchasing part of the old farm. To the right is Bill Hooper of the Planning Board, and behind Mr Hooper is Mrs Papaliosilos, who has purchased the old farm house.

Colonial Homes of Wilmington

The Buck Book, genealogy of the Buck Family, states that the Benjamin Buck House, in Wilmington, dates from 1635, a date that has been widely accepted by some authorities, including state officials. Unfortunately it is in error.

The lady who wrote that book came up from Bucks County, Pennsylvania in the latter part of the nineteenth century to write a family genealogy. She knew her family history, but did not know Massachusetts geography, and accepted the date of the settlement of the Buck family in Cambridge as the date of the beginnings of the Buck House in Wilmington.

The house was dated by the writer and Dr. Stearns, of the Billerica Historical Society as being built about 1670. Since then further research indicates the date of 1671 or 1672, with the latter date probably being more correct. It is today the oldest house in Wilmington, and stands off Woburn Street, between that street and Wildwood Street.

The first home in Wilmington was that of William Butter, built where the Bruce MacDonald home is today, off Chestnut Street. It was built in or before 1665, and lasted for about 200 years. Drawings of the house, made in the days before the Civil War, are still in existence.

Nearby, at the Apple Monument, is the William Butter II House, which dates from about 1682. The exact date is uncertain. William Butter was the only son of William Butter I, (his mother was an Indian), and he was one of Wilmington's first Board of Selectmen.

It recently has received a new lease on life, being partly rebuilt and modernized.

One of the best sources of information on the Colonial homes of Wilmington is a booklet printed by order of the town in 1882, being the addresses of the Rev. Daniel P. Noyes, pastor of the Congregational Church, on Sept. 25, 1880, the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the town's founding. The Rev. Mr. Noyes, while he did not give a complete report, had the advantage of talking with grandsons of the town's early settlers.

More information has come to the writer from various sources over the years. He now intends to take up where Mr. Noyes left off, and survey the Colonial homes of Wilmington, street by street.

At the very northern end of Andover Street is the home of the Eager family. Andover Street, together with parts of Woburn Street, Eames Street and Main Street (including a discontinued portion of the latter) was the ancient road from Boston to Andover, called The Andover Road, and laid out over the Ipswich Ford, from Woburn to Andover in 1672.

The Eager home, as well as others on Andover Street and on Ballardvale Street and northerly of Salem Street were in the ancient Land of Nod, set aside as a part of Charlestown when Woburn was incorporated in 1642. It was later divided into ten tracts of about 300 acres each. Somewhere there must be a description of those tracts. The writer has never seen one.

Mr. Noyes believed that the Eager home was one which existed at the founding of Wilmington in 1730, and says that a Jones family lived there. The Jones farm, the writer believes, was south of this house. But the framework of the house supports a theory that it was built prior to 1730.

A few hundred feet south is the Sclarrappa home. Part of the main house dates back to before 1730. Across the street is an old house, but it is to be doubted if it is actually Colonial.

Further south, where the Knollwood Farmhouse is today, is the site of the Jones Farm. The old building has long since disappeared. The present structure dates from the 1880s, and was built for Eben Jordan, one of the founders of Jordan Marsh.

Lt. Jones, of this farm, was killed at Ticonderoga as were some of the soldiers under his command. The Jones farm extended to beyond the present North Reading line.

Upton Court, just north of Rte 125, marks the lane which led to a farmhouse which was owned by the Upton family, and also by the Rich family. Both were residents of Wilmington in Colonial days.

Further south, at the meeting of Woburn and Andover Streets, are several old houses. Only one of these can, by any stretch of the imagination, be said to be Colonial. It was 'raised' on July 4, 1776, the Independence Day of the United States of America. It is presently numbered 94 Andover Street.

The home of Charles Rounds, DMD, was built in 1795, by Colonel Joshua Harnden. It's claim to history is more modern, in that it was an 'Underground Railway Station' in the days prior to the Civil War.

Northeast of this home, on the northerly side of the hill on the property, prior to 1730, stood the home of Samuel Dummer Esq., a retired planter, who was a brother of His Majesty's Lieutenant-Governor of Massachusetts Bay Colony. Samuel Dummer came to the Land of Nod with slaves, from the West Indies, and was the Moderator of Wilmington's first Town Meeting. He bought one of the 300 acre tracts of the Land of Nod for his homestead.

Further easterly, on Salem St. were two houses.

One was near the old Nod Mill. It stood on a hill, westerly of Martin's Brook and northerly from Salem Street. Nod Pond, which it overlooks, dates back to 1695 or earlier. When the home was built the writer knows not.

Easterly of Martin's Brook was another home, which probably was Colonial. It was known, in Civil War times, as Walsh's or Welsh's (the correct name was Walsh). It stood about where the Cronin Brothers office is today, but on top of a hill which was cut away after the Salem & Lowell Railroad was built, and used for fill in the City of Salem.

Going westerly on Salem Street, westerly of Route 93, is the John Elia home, which was the Pearson Tavern, built about 1737 by Kendall Pearson, miller, who bought the Nod Mill in that year. Many people have attempted to determine the exact date when this house was built. 1737 is the common conclusion, because Pearson also sold his house on Middlesex Avenue in that year, in addition to buying Nod Mill.

Up on Ballardvale Street, a mile north, stood the Tweed-Manning house, which became the victim of the arsonist in the past few years. The house, reputed to have been standing there as early as 1666, probably was built later. It was there about the year 1700.

Most certainly it was a Colonial Home, and possibly the second built in what is now Wilmington, but the writer has never seen any proof of the date of construction.

Lt. James Tweed was an officer of the Wilmington Militia in the early nineteenth century. He called the farm 'Nod Farm'. Deacon Manning was a Deacon of the Congregational Church about or after the time of the Civil War.

Still further on, on the other side of Ballardvale Street, the red farm house near Service Way has a reputation of being Colonial.

Going westerly again on Salem Street is the Harriman-Brooks House. On the front lawn was an elm tree which was one of the markers for the southern boundary of Nod.

This house (the front part) was built in 1720 or a little earlier by Cadwallader Ford, an emigrant from Londonderry, in Ireland.

This was a Blanchard house, before being purchased by the late Caleb Harriam. At the westerly end of the old farm bounds, near the Boston & Maine, stood the 'Widow Blanchard Pine' which once marked the western extremity of Nod.

Still further west, north of Salem Street, but not in Nod, is the home of Atty Fred Corum. It is close to the 'Wildcat' railroad, and was, before the Revolution, the home of the Burt family.

Still further west, northerly of Salem Street and near the Tewksbury line, at a point which is today marked by the head of Royal Street stood a house which the writer calls the Phelps House. It may have been a Colonial.

Going southerly on Middlesex Avenue, which was once called The Main Road, there once was a house on what is now the front left lawn of what is now 434 Middlesex Ave. This, in the days subsequent to the Civil War, was called The Black House, from the color of its unpainted clapboards. It may have been Colonial, but there is no proof.

Turning onto High Street, at the top of a knoll where the present Lally house stands, stood, during the Revolution, the home of Wilmington's first medical man, Dr. Brown, not to be confused with the Dr. Brown who later purchased the Joshua Harnden house at Salem and Woburn Streets.

At what is now 67 High Street stood the house which is popularly credited with being the first to be built in North Wilmington - the Richard Harnden House.

For many years the date ascribed to the house has been 'about 1665'. The writer now puts it at 'about 1667' that being the year in which Richard Harnden was married.

Going over the hill, eastward, in the center of what is now Route 93, stood the Samuel Gowing House. The Rev. Mr. Noyes said it was built 'less than one hundred years ago' i.e. post-Revolutionary.

The night before it was burned, to make way for the new highway, the writer inspected this house. In the attic, in black paint, was the date 1765, and a phrase suggesting that it was built in that year.

Going almost directly south of the Richard Harnden House, at the 'further' corner of the Woburn St. School lot, stood, in 1706, the home of Deacon John Harnden. He was Deacon of the Reading church, now the Wakefield Church. His family was killed by Indians in 1706, while he was away on church duties. The house was later the home of the Labradeur family, during the time of Evangeline.

On the north side of Park Street, now the home of the Anderson Brothers, is the Gowning House. The land was purchased in 1710, the family coming from Lynnfield.

Further south on Woburn Street, the ancient Andover Road, stands two homes, on opposite sides of the street.

The one on the easterly side was built by the Hathorne family. The family came from Lynnfield in 1737, and bought the land at that time.

On the west side, the home of Mrs Allgrove, is a house which was standing in 1730, once called the Pickering House. In 1730 it was the home of Mr. Evans, who built the pulpit for the first Congregational Church.

Going further south, south of Concord Street, the Sweeney house on the right side, nearly marks the site of the Jenkins family, about 1709. Jenkins came from Medford and his home stood at about the southerly edge of the Sweeney lawn. The ford over the Ipswich, nearby, was called the Jenkins Ford. Later a bridge was built, by Asa Sheldon, who strode out into the icy waters in February to lay the foundation stones. Today it is called 'Jenks Bridge'.

Crossing the Ipswich River, still going south, we come to the crossing of the Boston & Maine Railroad. Somewhere here, before 1730, was the home of Daniel Eames and his first wife. All traces are gone, perhaps destroyed when the railroad was built in 1845.

West Street, which goes left at this place, was in old Reading. It was the road used by Deacon Harnden.

The Foley home, at the corner of Klimarnock Street, may be one of the Colonial homes. The writer does not know.

Lowell Street dates from about 1845, and was for several generations called 'The New Road'. On the other side, almost in the corner, is a house, the home of the late May Swain, which probably was a Wesson home in 1730.

Still further on, where Wilmington and Reading meet today, is Townsend's Corner, the corner of the Town Bounds. Supposedly a Townsend family lived here in

Selectmen's Meeting

When is a wreck (automobile) not a wreck?

Answer: When it is a Demo (and that doesn't mean Demonstrator, but Demolition).

Possibly that's a joke, but it wasn't, Monday night, at the Board of Selectmen's meeting, as a dozen residents of Marion Street protested the presence of three auto Junk (?) yards.

The discussion was about the Zoning Law, and about Police Powers, and a few more things too.

Dick Cushing of Marion Street, who is a weekend Demolition Race Car Driver, and who operates (out of Wilmington, he said) a junk car business, was the center of the first part of the discussion. Later Stanley Hibbins, who lives next door, became a part of the discussion, and then a third party, unnamed, further up Marion Street, who is alleged to have the 'worst' junk yard business of all.

The Board of Selectmen, collectively, were the soul of indignation, with James Miceli, the man of few words, having the most to say, and others, in approximately an order of James Banda, Wavie Drew and George Boylen, also speaking up from time to time to voice their own indignation, and to assure the residents that they were working on the problem. Bruce MacDonald, relatively speaking, was the quietest.

Chief of Police Paul J. Lynch, in attendance, held forth for about half an hour on the various phases of the statutes. Mr. Lynch, who spoke for about half an hour, followed the Selectmen who spoke about the same length of time.

Lynch told the Selectmen that they had not been on the proper trail, in their pursuance of the matter. He had had a conference with the Town Counsel, Alan Altman, and he had visited the site of the disputed junkyard (or collection of Demos, depending on the point of view) with a Registry of Motor Vehicles Inspector, Friday.
All the motor vehicles in the Cushing yard were in operating condition, the Chief said - so that they could not be classified as 'junk'.

At one point Mr. Lynch told the Selectmen that they were wasting time. He ended up by promising, after being assured of a backing by the Selectmen, that he would solve the problem in thirty days.

Cushing told the Selectmen that the cars in his yard could not be seen from the street, and that they were not a part of his junk car business, but instead a part of his barely discussed, other than to have it said that it was the worst.

Neatly all the participants were rather heated in their discussions.
The chairman at times had difficulty in keeping order.

After the discussion was over it continued for a long time in the main part of the town hall, mostly between the Chief and the operators of the 'demos'.

Underground Cable

Nearly every resident of Concord Street was represented in a hearing about an underground cable to be laid from Middlesex Avenue to the North Reading line, by the New England Telephone Co. The company was represented by a Mr. Francis.

There were several objections on the part of the residents, all of which were quickly answered by Mr. Francis, except one, directed to the Board of Selectmen by Mort Grant. Grant told the Selectmen that in such hearings (which are advertised by post card)

YOU GUYS WASTE TIME! Said Chief of Police Paul Lynch to the Selectmen, as residents of Marion Street crowd around the door and listen. Cushing is at the extreme right.

business, but instead a part of his
'demo' hobby.

He was told that the problem was if the cars could be seen by abutters, and that anyway it was a residential zone.

Stan Hibbins, who lives nearby, was alleged to have 'eleven' junk cars in his yard.

He told the Selectmen that he had five cars in his yard, four of them registered. He was not running a garage, he said, but instead was allowing relatives from Malden and other nearby cities to repair their cars in his property.
There was no money involved, so there was no busines, was his argument.

The third place, unnamed, was none of those who are notified have any idea of what it is all about until the hearing starts. He had been in the Town Hall last week to try to find out, but couldn't.

Chairman Banda guessed that Grant had been in the Town Hall at the time that he (Banda) had the papers for the purpose of setting up the agenda for the Monday meeting. Otherwise, he assured Grant, they were in the possession of the Town Clerk.

The underground telephone cable is to be on the left hand side of Concord Street, as a person goes towards the North Reading line.

Many people do not actually know the difference between a psychiatrist and a psychologist. Before you enlist either one's service, you should be well aware of his specialty.

A psychiatrist is a licensed medical doctor who specializes in diseases of the mind.
His training includes advanced instruction in the diagnosis and treatment of such illnesses - as well as the customary training period of internship and residency.

A psychologist is not a licensed physician, though he may be called 'doctor' if he has earned a Ph. D. by pursuing an extensive postgraduate course in the field of human behavior.

Nosey Nancy

Send your announcements to Nancy, Box 208, Wilmington, or call 657-7141, and after five, 658-4865. If I'm not there, then I'll call you!

Did you miss this Chick last week? Well, thanks for your numerous phone calls, but this kid wrote that column...The Captain didn't have the room, that's all...We just fill in, you see...and the cars are going into the winter season...So...this will be really some column this week...Ready?...

Hey, Fall is here, and around the Square you can see Mel Woodside's chest expansion with the addition of a grandchild, a granddaughter, may I add, which was born to Carol and Paul MacMullin this weekend (Can't you see Lil on that shopping spree now?)...

And...down on Woburn Street Grandpa Roy Hersom has already popped his buttons, with the birth of John Hersom III last week at the Lawrence Memorial in Medford...This is many generations Those Hersom folks are the longest living folks all told of any I've ever met...

Anyway, Congratulations to the grandparents and the parents...It's just great for both families!

There are honors for the Poole granddaughter this week...She is the Miss Hopkinton Fair of 1969, and didn't have a chance to talk to her personally yet, so don't know if the prize was scholarship money or what...Will catch up on it during the next few days though and let you know. Congratulations, and I'll bet that makes your Grandpappy mighty proud also!

This week: Don't forget you got a date to see the Skirts and Flirts, the Square Dance Club on Tuesday night, Sept 9th in the Wilmington Plaza parking lot They'll be doing their stuff, and they will be starting their regular classes on September 18th at 8pm at the West Intermediate. If you are so inclined, call Dora Ardolino at 658-2477 for more information!

Then Dr Mack B Stokes is having an Evangelical Program sponsored by the Wilmington United Methodist Church. This will kick off at 9 am on Sunday, and you are all invited. See the news release in this here copy of the paper!

Don't forget FISH...Commitment Sunday soon, but you don't have to belong to anything to join...Just call the FISH 657-7778, or me at 657-7141 and tell us what you can do and when! We're counting on you and you and you to get with this Community Help project and we already have a list of eight or ten! (Hear the kids call Les White, the Big Chief in this organization, a special name they developed for him this summer...at Asbury Grove...and that is...BIG DADDY! And I couldn't have named him better myself...That's the boy, Les!)

Almost forgot, thanks to TH for the thought about FISH: I am only one But still I am one I cannot do everything But still I can do something And because I cannot do everything, I will not refuse to do the something that I can do!

Edward Everett Hale And T.H., we will be looking for your 'thing' and I hope that the young man is better soon!

George Gray has asked me to extend his personal thanks to the person or persons who filled those big holes on Clark Street on the DeMoulas side of the railroad tracks with concrete! Glad to see you folks are on the ball!

Miss Rose U Surrutte, who has lived these many years at 53 Middlesex Avenue, has left us to live in North Weymouth. She's a kindly gal, well liked, and here's betting she won't like North Weymouth as well as Wilmington.

Bernice Bennett of 78 Grove Ave knows a practical joke when she sees one. In fact she was the butt of one a couple of weeks ago, when someone told the Town Crier that she had become the mother of twins. It was hectic for a while, but Bernice was able to take it, and now she is quite certain she knows who did it.

She's just cooking up something, herself! Just wait!

OOPS! Your cards this week go to Dana Howe on Woburn St who loused up his summer and the family's with an appendix operation...Bet he would have preferred to miss the school! Right Dana!

And more for cards are Mike Barry, who is a patient at the St Joseph's Hospital in Lowell. He has been in that place for two weeks, and doesn't know when he'll be coming home, so get with that one...And Mrs Virginia Johnson of 142 Grove Ave is in the Malden Hospital with a serious operation, where she will have to stay put for at least three weeks...And Bob Belliveau of the No Wilmington Barber fame is having an operation at the Winchester Hospital this week, so that will keep you busy there, Gals...Get with it there, Chicks Don't let me down!

Speaking of that...Fred Melvin told me how great you were when he was in the hospital and he said he really looked forward to getting those cards....You're really a... GRAND GROUP!

And...speaking of Fred...he had more grandchildren while he was in there...which brings the number to 25 and one great grandson by the name of Leo Gravelle Jr... The new additions are John Howard Melvin Jr, born August 6 at the Winchester Hospital to John Howard Melvin Sr and Betsy (Fullerton) of River Street, and Susan Marie Burris, born July 17th at Winchester Hospital to Mr and Mrs Louis Burris of Hobson Avenue (Barbara Melvin). Well, our congratulations to this Group... (AND...lo, the visions of what will be happening in the Clan a few years hence!)

Marge Craik of the Wilmington Lawnmower Service (formerly) did drop in this week, and she would like all of you kind folk to know that she and Gene are now residents of 354 Marsh Road (Rt 111A) Pelham, New Hampshire...and she misses you all! In case you are curious about that new building on their former property...that will be a brand new Animal Hospital for Dr Harvey Skolnik and will be ready, we believe on or around December 1st...and Jackie has her new Pet Supply Shop open next to the Wilmington Drug Store...and it is most enticing...you can park your car in the Depot and shop at your leisure...She has about everything you can think of there even note paper with your favorite bound on it.

DID YOU KNOW THAT: Barbie Farrell walked away with a 3rd Prize at the Topsfield Fair? With her usual finesse and skill, she created a quilt with eagles appliqued on it...Fran and Barbie are the new owners of that Buck House up at the junction of Wildwood and Woburn Sts behind John Callan's and you better believe some transformations are taking place there!

Kathie Lounsberry and Sandy Nickerson just got their No 2 stripes at the Lawrence Memorial Hospital in Medford!

Ann Ellsworth tells me that they were on their way to the plane...and 'Fluff-Fluff' got away...He's an all black angora and got lost in the vicinity of the Glen Road School...and he should be mighty skinny by now, on account of she says he's very shy...So, if you have seen him, or do see him, Please give this chick a call!

The Low Down on the Kiwanian Banner, girls:

It disappeared, as you know, and there was quite a to-do. This gal was of the opinion that some members of another club were responsible. She was wrong.

The police caught three young fellows with the banner last week, and they are blaming them - all local boys and nice guys too. The police are wrong.

The young fellows had found the banner behind the High School, and they were just dragging it out to return it to the Kiwanians, when the police nabbed them. And, to add insult to injury, they were not even going to claim or accept the $50 reward that was offered!

The dirt is that it was two young college boys. They were going to string the banner across the beach in Hampton, N.H., but it proved to be too heavy for them, and they abandoned it.

So the Kiwanians got it up again, and had a real nice bean supper on the Common, last Saturday.

Now to all of you folks...there is an invitation for a Voya Condi's Farewell Party for that Spanish Speaking Preacher Willis Miller. You know he's going to South America on an Evangelical Tour and he's learned Spanish just for that occasion. This Do will be in the Fellowship Hall of the Metho dist Church at 8 pm on Wednesday September 17th...and we want to see you all...If you wish to ask any questions, call Fran Gamlin at 658-3259.

Man, oh man, and will I ever be glad to get all of these kids back in their stalls...And they say they are less troublesome when they get older? They got to be kidding!

Speaking of the Clan, I didn't mean to add this yet, but I can't wait...No 7 Son arrived...That is Billy Rice. He's home from Nam back into the world...and were we ever happy to see him! (For those

You can start a job with just a handful of very simple tools, some of which you probably have already. A pocket knife, for example, is one you'll always need for hundreds of jobs; scraping off dribbles of hardened paint to stripping insulation from the ends of lamp cord wires.

If it's a Boy Scout knife, it even contains a screwdriver and a leather punch. The leather punch can also make a hole in soft wood. The kitchen ice pick is handy, too, for making much smaller holes in wood to get a screw started -- as when you want to screw in some extra cup hooks.

In fact, he was around so much, with the brown and crewcut, and the deviltry when they were small, that this Chick just naturally includes him in the Clan...and we love that Boy! He is scheduled for thirty days, and has already bought himself a new GTO, we hear...(By the way there, Son, don't forget my ride!)...and then is scheduled for Colorado...and that will be some change in the climate from 110 degrees...He said he left Nam on Sunday at 1:55 and arrived in the US on Sunday at 2:00...now only Uncle Sam could arrange that...(In fact, he says he thought

WILMINGTON - TEWKSBURY ELKS CLUB

The Wilmington - Tewksbury Elks' grove was the site of the annual outing of the Malden Eagles last Sunday, and the Melrose Elks are to hold their annual picnic at the grove next Sunday.

Esteemed Leading Knight Al Parsons has presented an American Flag, which has flown over the Capital in Washington DC to Ed Sullivan, chairman of the Americanism Committee. It was given by Congressman Brad Morse, and will be raised over the Elks new building in an appropriate ceremony, in the near future.

The monthly social was a great success, and the next is slated for Oct. 11, an Italian night, at $2.50 per person, with the public invited.

The new dance floor in the rear of the building is to be ready soon, Steward Walter Sharkey says.

And Exalted Ruler Ed Tumowsky notes that capacity crowds continue to be the rule at the blitz parties on Tuesday nights.

The Americanism Class of Elks Lodge 34 were initiated last Sunday Officers in attendance were: Ed Tumowsky, Exalted Ruler; Al Parsons, Leading Knight; George Higgins, Loyal Knight; Thomas Burris, Leading Knight; Edward Carlton, Esquire; Leroy Thing, Secretary; Bob Murphy, Inner Guard; John McPhee, Chaplain; Dick Caldwell, Tiler; Dick Gertinin, Organist and Trustees Barry Boyle and Lenny Bagley.

Also present were Past Exalted Rulers Tony Cappinla, John Hart, Al Thompson and Arthur Jowett.

SELECTMEN
(Fr. Pg. 4)

Mr and Mrs Robert Barr of Forest Street, told the Selectmen that they should get together with the Selectmen of Burlington, for the purpose of settling the disputed town line between that town and Wilmington.

The Barr family, he said, are getting over $1600 a year in tax bills, from the two towns, because the assessors in each town have to assess their household. This has been going on now for several years. The family had appealed for abatements, of course, but just the same it was a very upsetting condition in which they found themselves.

Wood gave a lengthy run-down of the history of the disputed line, giving credit to the engineers who had worked, the two legislators, Reps. Fred Cain and Bob Vigneault, and to the Selectmen of the two towns, but said that the settlement was getting no where.

The difficulty he described was with the new Town Counsel of Burlington, a Mr. Berman.

The case had resolved itself to one in which the Selectmen of the two towns would have to get together for an agreement, Wood told the Wilmington Selectmen.

The Land Court could make a decision, Wood declared, but it would be a costly process for his clients, who were the innocent victims of circumstances.

All this was news to the Selectmen. They considered the business as being practically settled.

They agreed to meet with the Burlington Selectmen, and went

TO ATTEND ELMS

Miss Mary P. DuBois, daughter of Mr and Mrs Victor A DuBois of 161 Burlington Avenue has been accepted for studies at the College of Our Lady of the Elms, in Chicopee. She is a graduate of the Academy of Our Lady of Nazareth.

Although Miss DuBois is undecided concerning her major area of concentration in college, she states the goal of her college education is to become a well-rounded person, better prepared for the world.

into an executive session with Wood to discuss details.

Other Business

For Jury Duty for the Civil Court in Lowell Robert Jennings of 4 Moore Street and for the Jury Pool in Cambridge names drawn were Tom Lacey of 93A West St and John E Weed of 22 Cunningham Street.

Subject to the recommendations of Chief Paul Lynch, a certificate of incorporation was granted to Ralph Earle for the Martins Pond Union Baptist Church, Inc.

Chuck Mather, the Chairman of the Finance Committee appeared to explain the vote on the transfer of funds as requested by the Town Manager for the uniforms for the Fire Department. It was ascertained that the itemization had not been made for allotment of existing funds for the Fire Department and the TM could spend these monies as he saw fit. He was then assured by Bob Barry, another member of the Finance Committee that they would cover him later, in the event funds for this Department were depleted, since the items requested had been granted in the Collective Bargaining agreement with the Town. With this assurance, Morris indicated he would take care of the uniforms immediately.

Paul Sughrue of the Hathaway Acres area appeared with a petition signed by 135 people requesting installation of sidewalks from the Park Street Bridge to Salem Street along Woburn St from the Woburn St School area, a distance of approximately 3500 feet at a cost of $5 per foot, as estimated by Arthur Harding, the Town Engineer, who was present. Mr Sughrue was told that the 1969 money had been allotted for Clark and Adams Streets, but the Board would request priority for this area next year.

Town Dump

The Board of Health asked the Board to consider the use of the present Town Dump before the next Town Meeting. A discussion ensued as to whether the present operating site should be used, or whether Bob Palmer, the supervisor of the Highway Department could operate a dump on the adjacent land which was now owned by the Town. On warning from Chairman Banda, there was a noticed hesitancy, since Banda stated there is a question of Land Court dispute over the area between the present owner and the Town as to the title of the land involved.

A hearing was set for September 22 for an application for storage of 5000 gallons of gasoline for the A&D Trust on 319A Andover St.

Robert Stevens of Winchester requested a Hatch Act Hearing which was set for September 15th. A petition for Chapter 90 funds for the County Commissioners was signed on the motion by George Boylen to 'keep the money active'.

Invitations were extended to the Board to attend a joint installation of the American Legion Officers for September 13th at 7:30; and to participate in a function for the Leatherneck Det of the Marine Corps on Sept 20th at 7:30 at the K of C Hall.

A permit for a food concession at the Rt 125 Auction Hall was granted to Bob Auer subject to the Board of Health Regulations.

An application for permission of sale of used vehicles was referred to the Board of Appeals.

DeJohn of 32 Salem Street requested a 'speed limit' sign on Salem Street. This was referred to the Town Manager.

By petition, the installation of street lights on Nathan Road was requested. The TM said there were no funds available presently.

A letter to the Department of Taxation was signed with reference to an abatement on the former property of Winona L Steele for betterments. This property is now owned by the Town and there is a betterment outstanding of $644.

An additional taxi license was granted to Dan McKinnon of Town Taxi, after much discussion between Boylen and Miceli on the limiting of the number of licenses on a motion by Mrs Drew. The taxis were then limited to 20 in number until April of 1970. The dissenting vote was cast by Miceli because he does not believe in the restriction of private enterprise.

Part of the home of Mrs Wavle Drew, nearby, is reported to date from 1750.

Returning to Woburn and West Street and going south, we come to the corner of Woburn and Wildwood Streets. One hundred years ago this was called "The City".

The Benjamin Buck House is on the right, between Woburn and Wildwood Streets.

Easterly of Woburn Street is the handsome red farmhouse which was built by Ephraim Buck in 1723 and sold to Daniel Eames. This was the Eames homestead for over one hundred fifty years, and Daniel Eames and Cadwallader Ford engaged together in financial speculations with the notes given to the soldiers of the French & Indian Wars, notes which were later redeemed for land in Maine.

The Buck farm, before alluded to, is all Colonial, but the front part was built about seventy or seventy five years after the back part. There is much history connected with the house.

The Swain-Gowing House, at the corner of Woburn & Lowell Streets, which was burned recently after it became the victim of the arsonist's torch, dated to 1753. Still further south, on Avco land, stood the home of the late Herbert C Barrows, also the victim of the arsonist's torch. It was standing in 1703, and possibly as early as 1697.

At the junction of Woburn and Eames Streets, one hundred or so feet southerly, stood a home which in 1827 was the "Widow Eames" home. It was she who sold the Town Farm to Wilmington, in that year.

The house was quite probably Colonial. It was recently torn down

Further southerly, still on The Andover Road, at the point where Eames Street and Main Street join was the Deane House, at the spot where the home of Joseph App is today. There is reason to believe it dated from 1749 or earlier. It was burned, about 1930.

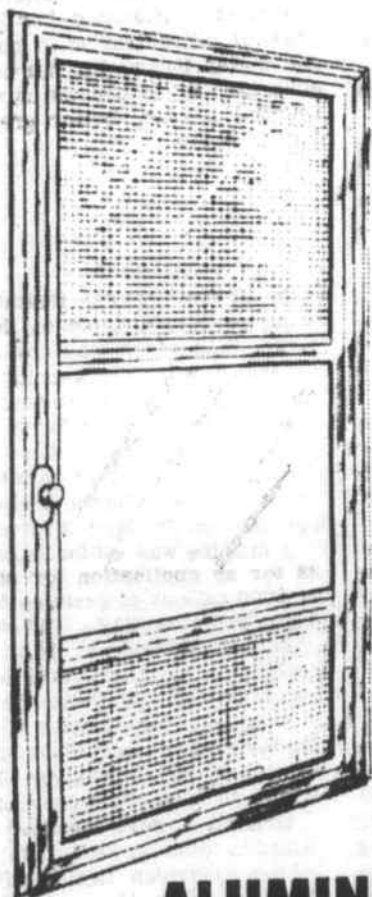

Southerly from this house, in what is now the area of the Town Dump, there used to be a field which was known as The Training Field. Presumably it was used by the militia. The writer has no direct knowledge.

Returning to North Wilmington, on The Main Road (Middlesex Ave), where it crosses the Boston & Maine railroad, at approximately the site of the Town Crier office, once stood, according to what the Rev. Mr. Noyes was told, the home of a Capt. Slocum. The writer has never seen anything to authenticate the story. PAGE TEN

Colonial Homes

The Squire Eames home, also the victim of the arsonist's torch, was about 100 yards southerly from the railroad, and was known recently as 'The 1730 House'.

It most certainly was in existence before that date, possibly as early as 1697. In construction it was very similar to the home of the late Mr. Barrows. The father of Daniel Eames may have lived here in 1700.

On Federal Hill, where the Joseph Gilligan home stands today was the home of Colonel Blanchard, a Minute Man in the days of Lexington, and later commanding one of the Middlesex Regiments.

Colonel Blanchard came from Billerica, and either bought or built the house. Probably he bought it, for in 1730 a Killam lived at this place, or perhaps a few yards southerly on Federal Street. The house of Col. Blanchard was torn down in 1912.

Going southerly, to the old grave yard, one can see today the lines where the first church stood, adjacent to the driveway, which in 1730 was the road itself. The Rev. Mr. Noyes left a good description of the first church, from which someday an artist may render a drawing.

The Walter Blanchard House, between the church and Glen Road is believed to date from 1739. It was much changed by the Blanchard family during the 1800s.

Church Street was not in existence until shortly before the Civil War.

A Wesson family possibly lived about 1737 at the present site of the First Baptist Church.

On Glen Road, at the railroad crossing, once called the Otis Carter crossing, stood the Scales House in 1741. The cellar hole still exists, but recently large stones have been pushed in by a bulldozer.

Glen Road was laid out in 1741 between the house and the barn. The barn cellar was in existence after World War I, and the knowing eye may still pick out part of it, in the gravel and clay bank beside the road.

In 1927 or 28, when the Water Department was laying a water line across Kelly Meadow, on the other side of the railroad, the original road was discovered, several feet below the surface - a road made of logs laid on top of the peat.

Going westerly on Middlesex Avenue, the next Colonial house is that of the Rev. Isaac Morrill, the chaplain to the Massachusetts forces in the French and Indian Wars, at the siege of Fort Mifflin, and a man who took his part, in spite of his age, in the Revolution.

The house is today the home of Carl Connor. It dates from 1705, having been built by the Mr. Snow who also built the first mill on Mill Stream, nearby.

Kendall Pearson, who owned the mill about 1730, sold the house and mill in 1737, from whence he moved to his North Wilmington home. It then became the home, for fifty three years, of the Rev. Mr. Morrill, and of his children and grandchildren, still later. Today the outside is in the original shape, but the interior is much changed.

Further along, on the right hand side, beyond Clark Street, is the Billy Eames house, whom Mr. Noyes called Mr. William Eames.

It is a Colonial house.

Another Colonial was that of Timothy Carter, at 95 Middlesex Avenue. His daughter originated the seed-package idea, in the U.S. for flowers, and with her money had the house much enlarged. It was later cut into three parts. Part of the original structure was Colonial, but how much of the present structure is Colonial, if any, is a question.

The home at the corner of Adelaide Street and Middlesex Avenue, although not on its original site, dates to 1716. It once stood at the corner of Main and Butters Row. At the foot of Middlesex Avenue, between it and the railroad, are two apartment houses. Once they were a part of the Timothy Carter house, before aluded to. They are now on their third locations, having formerly stood on the Weinberg lot.

The Main Road (Middlesex Ave) continued westerly to join the early Shawsheen Avenue. There was no Main Street until much later, but where the New England Telephone Company building now stands was the Jaques home, built in Colonial times, and the site of Wilmington's first post office.

Further south on Main Street, about across from Gildart's, was a home which was occupied by the Carter family, in Colonial days. Still further south, and on the westerly side of Main Street was the Flagg House, dating to the 1730s.

The present home of Stanley Webber is Colonial, but no one has been able to date it with any degree of certainty. Probably between 1720 and 1745 is the best guess known to the writer.

Butters Row, named for the numerous members of the Butter family, who later changed their names to Butters, had a number of Colonial Homes.

Nearest to the railroad, where the cement block house of Matroni stands today, was a Colonial home of the Butters family. Ted, who died of wounds at Gettysburg, was born in this house. It disappeared in a tremendous explosion and fire in 1921. A 50,000 gallon still was suspected to have been in the building.

Still further on, near Chestnut Street, the home of the Hinxman family dates to 1712, and was the 'Garrison House' in early days. Still further on is the William But-ter II house, previously described, and still further on at the corner of Mill Road was the William But-ter I House.

Further south, opposite to Hill-side Way, was the Bell Farm. The farmhouse today is not the original, which was Colonial. The barn at that time stood across the street.

Still further on, within a quarter of a mile of Mill Pond, once stood a house, the Deacon Foster house, before the days of the Civil War. The writer does not know if it was Colonial.

Returning to the Apple Monument, on Chestnut Street, a road-way goes in toward Marion Street. Two of the colonial homes of the Butter family may be found in this area.

There were no colonial homes on what is today Burlington Avenue. On Boutwell Street stood, near the property line of the Fitzmaurice family, a house that dated back to at least 1754, the Boutwell place. There are those who say it was much older.

This was the ancestral home of Gov. (and Senator) Sewall Boutwell.

On Aldrich Road, near the Billerica line, stands an ancient home, formerly the property of Mrs. Bousfield. Perhaps it was standing in Colonial days, but probably it is later.

The first home in this area was that of Sgt. Abram Jaquith, built about 1665, on Aldrich Road, opposite to Forest Street. The present cellar hole there seems to have come from a later building.

There was another Jaquith home nearby, Colonial, the Joshua Jaquith house, not so old, to the southeast.

The home of Mrs. Duffy, commonly called the Aldrich home, was built by Capt. James Jaquith, a grandson of Abram. It probably is post-Colonial.

A Jaquith house stood near the present Corcoran house, on Aldrich Road, but probably in back it quite probably was a Colonial.

At the corner of Shawsheen Ave. and Bridge Lane is the Eldad Carter House, standing as it did in 1730.

Further on, at the home of Alden Eames, stood the Walker home, dating back before 1730. A second house was built on the same site, also Colonial, which burned in 1951.

The part of Wilmington which constitutes the 'thumb' was part of Billerica until 1737. Some of the Jaquith houses, before aluded to, were in Billerica when built. All told, in 1737, there were seven homes which became a part of Wilmington.

The Colonel Sam Hopkins house on Hopkins Street, still standing, was one of these, but has had changes.

Another stood where the new school is now building, built by Peter Cornelle in 1683. He was a Huguenot, one of those who had settled in Oxford, and perhaps had a mill on the Shawsheen River. Mr. Noyes refers to this house as the home of the Widow Jonathan Jaquith. The Cornelle family at the time of the Revolution spelled their name Cornell.

On Nichols Street, near the site of the railroad, were three houses all Colonial, one built by Jonathan Beard and sold to Col. Hopkins, and was later owned by the Timothy Carter who owned the house on Middlesex Avenue where, it can be said, the seed-package industry in America started.

A second home was owned by William Nichols, and a third by Joseph Burnap. All three burned in 1837, from a fire which was kindled by sparks from a locomotive.

Only two more homes remain to be described, which were Colonial, in Wilmington.

The ell of the Harold Melzar home, on Lake Street, is believed to have been built prior to 1752. The front part is much later, 1838.

The other, and last to be described, is the Thompson house, at 2 Main Street. This was the home of Deacon James Thompson, in 1720. He walked seven miles to church, in Woburn, every Sunday morning - and was generally there an hour before the minister.

The house has been changed. The original Thompson holdings were well down on Glen Road, and up towards Salem Street. What is now Miller Road constitutes the bound of the land, after the original mill at Lubbers Brook was sold to Henry Harnden, in the 1800s.

Postcard from Lennie Bryant in Athens: 'We've been in Athens for five days now. I've gone on two tours and a wine festival. There are tourists from England and the US. The other day at the beach I met an Air Force guy from Burlington, but I can't remember his name. He's stationed in Turkey. We leave Athens on Monday for a week at sea, then we will be in Carnes, France for ten days. The next port after Carnes is Palma, but that could change. It seems that in every port, we hit a new port of call schedule. I won't even try to say what's to come after Palma. I'll see you when I get home... Lennie Bryant (Thanks, Lennie This chick is thinking of joining the Navy and seeing the tours Hah...Sgt Dan Groblewski is still trying to get me to join the AF... more recruiting material this week! But think I's pick the Navy Must be the old seafarin blood croppin out!)

Joe Cataldo says: 'I've never written before but have stopped at the Depot to say hello a few times but now it is impossible because I'm in the Mediterranean on the USS Saratoga for 6 or 7 months. Anchored in this bay (Malta) and deprt tomorrow for Barcelona, Spain, so I really don't have it compared to some of the guys!

Jimmy Baxter sends us from Thailand a Hallmark Card yet with 'Pray for Peace' on the back which we certainly are doing all of the time, and for your welfare, Jimmy, and all of the others Charlie Brown says... 'When you're real lonely, Peanut Butter sticks to the roof of your mouth...' and I'll bet it just does!...He says he has been travelling and it's really hot. He's stationed outside Bangkok at Don Muang...He says it's the best air force base in Thailand but he still wants to come home...Carl Guarino's folks send him the TC he says, for which he is grateful, and he was most complimentary to this chick...God Bless You too, Jimmy...We are praying...

More cards and notes, and we will have them all on the board at the Depot for you townfolks to drop in and gaze at while you are waiting for the train, or when you have a free minute, you are welcome!

Now, our last shot...this gal wants to share some words of Francis Bacon with you that is philosophy for real!

'It's not what we eat, but what we digest that makes us strong; not what we gain, but what we save that makes us rich; not what we read, but what we absorb, that makes us learned; not what we preach, but what we practice, that makes us lovable.' (Bet we all can think about that one!)

Jaycee Flag Football

Miceli, Charles River & Builders Win Openers

The first week of the Wilmington Jaycee Flag Football season saw the Jim Miceli Club trounce the Elks 47-19, the Charles River Breeding Labs nip the same Elks 22 to 19, and the Newhouse Builders humble Sweetheart Plastics 54 to 9.

On a rainy Tuesday night the Jim Miceli Club's quarterback Dick Ethier clicked on 21 or 39 passes for 292 yards and 4 touchdowns, and ran one in himself, bring his team to an early lead but hard fought win. Ethier's blockers, Charlie Ravagni, Billy Simmons and Lionel Bladwin, provided impenetrable protection and fine pass receiving, while the defensive backfield shut off the Elks' long game. Defensive ends Joe Woods and Bill Eldredge hurried the opponents passers into but 11 completions in 29 attempts.

Bill Rooney rushed for 86 yards and 2 T.D.s in the Elks' lost cause. On Thursday the Elks took it on the chin again, this time giving the Charles River Labs their first win ever. Last year's rushing champ Butch Liscombe hit on 19 of 29 passes, 10 were to But Otis, tying a League record. The passes were for two touchdowns, and Liscombe ran for another as the Breeders won by the margin of a safety and an extra point. Teammate Harry Sewade made 9 tackles, scored the safety, and intercepted a pass in his typically all league manner.

Elk linebacker Billy Gracie made a fantastic 10 tackles (also tying a record) and picked off a pass, but saw his defense allow Steve Call and Jim MacMullin to lug passes into the end zone. Scratch O'Reilly passed for 232 yards and a score, and caught a T.D. pass himself for the Elks in defeat.

Friday night's rout of Sweetheart Plastics knotted Jackie Cushing's club into a tie for the top on the strength of the play of Dick Allard and Denny DeMaggio. Allard found his targets on 24 of his 36 passes for a whopping 350 yards and 7 touchdowns, 3 to Jimmy Newhouse. DeMaggio snatched 7 enemy flags and stole a pair of passes in a brilliant defensive display. Sweetheart coach Jack Florence matched DeMaggio's tackling performance but his offense could only show an 8 catch, one touchdown effort by flanker Enos to boast about.

Action continues this week and next, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Town Park.

HS Football Team Debuts Friday

Wilmington High School's 1969 Varsity Football Team is to make its debut tomorrow night, at the annual Merrimack Valley Football Jamboree. The Jamboree starts at 7 pm in the Cawley Memorial Stadium in Lowell.

The Wildcats are to scrimmage against Westford at 8 pm., in the third game. The probable starting lineup includes: Al Heim and Dan Ballou at the ends, Co-captain Bruce McNelis at center, Mike DiGregorio and Mike Severin at the tackles, Ken Cleary and Billy DeLisle at the guards, Bill Gustus QB, Mike Esposito FB, Dick Gillis HB, and Rick Smallidge HB in the backfield.

Tickets for the jamboree are for sale in the High School from Bob Dicey, Room 127, faculty manager of athletics. Student tickets are 50¢ and adult $1. Tickets will also be available at the gate, of the stadium.

Varsity football is to open its season on Saturday, Sept. 27 at 1:30 pm, when they host the Golden Warriors of Andover High School.

Soccer Now a High School Sport

A new sport has been added to the High School varsity program. Soccer, which was played last year informally, is now a Varsity Sport, with Frank Lentine, Graphic Arts instructor, as coach.

36 candidates have reported, for the 11 positions.

The team is to play an eight game slate, opening at Woburn next Tuesday. Other games include three road affairs at Andover on Sept. 25, Lynn English on Oct. 14 and at Xavier in Concord Oct. 16.

The Soccer Team will make its home debut on October 2nd against Xavier. Other home games include Lynn English, Oct 7; Andover, Oct. 23, and the closing game with Woburn on Oct. 28.

Pop Warner Opens Sunday

Wilmington's Pop Warner football teams open their 1969 season Sunday, on the High School Field.

The defending champions have a smaller team this year, but the spirit is there, the coaches aver, and they look forward to another series of victories.

The A team is to play the Brighton Pop Warner, starting at 1:30 pm and the B team is to play Malden Pop Warner, after the first game.

Tennis Tournament

The annual Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Wilmington Recreation Commission, is slated to begin about September 16th. Trophies are again to be donated by the Rotary Club.

Players should be available for matches within 48 hours, and be willing to play under the lights. Tennis balls will be provided only for the finals, which are to be held on Oct. 5 at the North School.

Mrs Raymond Forrest 658-7445 is in charge of men's division, Mrs Milton Cram 658-2437 for the ladies, and Mrs Robert Cavanaugh 658-4963 in charge of children 12 to 15. Mrs Norman Pedersen is the co-ordinator.
